

The Anderson Intelligencer.

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 22, 1865.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Advertisements inserted at the rates of One Dollar per square of twelve lines for the first insertion and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion. Obituaries and Marriage Notices charged for at these rates.

OUR TERMS.

In order to place the Intelligencer within the reach of all, at this time, we have determined upon receiving subscriptions FOR THREE MONTHS ONLY, at the low price of Fifty cents in Specie or its equivalent in Provisions. The following schedule will be the governing rates at which provisions will be received at present:

Corn, 5 pecks,	16 dozen Eggs,
Wheat, 1 bushel,	5 lbs. of Butter,
20 lbs. of Flour,	5 lbs. of Bacon,
6 Chickens,	5 lbs. of Lard.

Mr. W. S. KEES is appointed our Agent to receive subscriptions, and is authorized to receipt for provisions or money.

Any of our friends receiving late papers will confer a great favor upon us by sending the same to this office. In all cases they will be carefully preserved and returned, when desired.

When communication is open once more with the outer world, it is our purpose to enlarge the Intelligencer to its former size. Of course, those who subscribe now for three months will not be charged additional during that time.

A trotting match will take place on Saturday next, over the Anderson Race Course, between Fanny Stoneman and Fanny Ellsler. Lovers of the turf will take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.

There being no mail arrangements now, by which people throughout the District can be supplied with even the small amount of news received here, we offer the suggestion that the various neighborhoods unite for the purpose, so that on a convenient day of the week each Post Office in the District will be supplied with such mail matter as arrives here.

OUR ADVERTISING COLUMNS.

We take occasion to call the attention of our friends to the advantages to be derived from advertising. As many are just now resuming business, we hope they will find it to their interest to avail themselves of the use of our columns, to present their claims to patronage before the public.

TO THE PUBLIC.

In appearing again before this community as a candidate for general patronage, we feel that it is entirely appropriate to address a few words to that generous public which has sustained us heretofore in all our humble efforts. The Intelligencer is set afloat at this time, under peculiar circumstances, and after an experience by no means pleasant or profitable to the proprietors. Upon its resumption in February last, after a suspension of nearly four years, there was no desire on our part to accumulate an extravagant quantity of the currency then extant, and consequently the price of subscription was placed within the reach of the poorest and humblest in the land. After three months of unceasing effort to perform the obligation under which we had voluntarily placed ourselves, to furnish a medium for general and local intelligence, the fortunes of war dissipated, at a single revolution of the wheel, all our expectations, and left us in an exceedingly crippled condition, from which we are only partially recovered. In other words, the damage done to our material is only sufficiently repaired to enable us to present the Intelligencer in a very diminutive form.

During the vacuum thus made in our history as journalists, events have crowded swiftly upon each other, and to-day we find a totally different existence all around us. The Confederate cause has waxed and waned, until there is not left a semblance of its vitality in the country east of the Mississippi River. The United States has resumed authority over the region named, and the people of the Southern States are left to contemplate their impoverished and unenviable condition. With sincere honesty and candor, we are free to admit that this state of things is contrary to our wishes and the hopes induced by the struggle for independence. Yet we cannot sink into pools of despondency nor flounder amid the shoals of despair, but would rather boldly meet the issue presented to us and endeavor to wrench from the grasp of Fate whatever will best conduce to the promotion of our interests and prospects. There is no choice, and we believe it altogether futile to build up temporizing methods or seek to shirk the responsibility attached to our present condition. Let us, then, with patience and manly fortitude, resolve to work out the destiny before us, and bend all our energies to recuperate the exhausted resources of our section. In this way only can we fulfill the duty of good citizens, striving to maintain and uphold the honor and dignity of an enlightened race. Let there be no fawning or sycophantic adulations of authority; but in a spirit of acquiescence and calm submission, sustain the measures inaugurated for our control and guidance.

The Intelligencer will be devoted, in future, to the dissemination of news, both local and general, and contain as heretofore instructive and moral literature. Of course its limited size will debar a great variety, yet we hope to enlarge at the earliest possible time.

POLICE REGULATIONS.

For the better government of society, and the maintenance of peace and good order in these troublous times, the Town Council of Anderson has organized an effective police force, including all male residents from 16 years and upwards. As yet the system is not matured and we regret to say that there are too many ready to offer excuses and evade the duty imposed. This should not be the case, and we would earnestly urge, upon one and all, the necessity of prompt compliance with the small demand upon their time and services. The police is under a competent chief, with seven assistants, and is sufficiently numerous to preserve order if every man will cheerfully discharge the duty incumbent upon him. In this connection, we might very properly cite, for the benefit of the doubting and credulous, the order issued from Columbia, requesting citizens to unite in the preservation of the public welfare, and which will be found upon our fourth page.

THE CROPS.

The prospect for an abundant corn crop in this section has never been excelled within our recollection. Frequent and copious showers have prevented a day's suffering in the corn fields, and it is a common remark that the corn crops were never more easily worked than this season.

The wheat crop has turned out badly, in most instances scarcely producing the seed. In all probability our people will have to be content with a very short allowance of flour.

The fruit crop promises to be most abundant. The peach trees are laden with an unusual quantity of fruit, and if no mishap occurs, there will be an excessively large yield.

We call attention to the advertisements in this issue, showing that there is some industry and business being pursued in our town.

We learn that the Broadway trestle will soon be completed.
